RECYCLE ADDITION: E-Cycle Washington program has expanded the scope of products allowed for E-Cycle to now include portable DVD players. Portable DVD players are fairly small hand-held devices with built-in DVD drives and flip-up screens that are, generally, ten inches (measured diagonally) or smaller. Ecology is adding only the portable DVD players to the scope of products included in the E-Cycle Washington program because they meet the definition of a covered electronic product in rule (WAC 173-900-030) which states, in part, "Covered electronic product includes any video display device having a viewable area greater than four inches when measured diagonally." The set-top DVD player that requires a connection to a TV does NOT meet the definition of a covered electronic product and it is NOT included in this expansion of the scope of products accepted by the E-Cycle Washington program.

E-Cycle also accepts TVs, computers, monitors and E-readers for recycling. Along with the laptop computers, tablet computers and E-readers, the portable DVD players you collect should be placed in a cardboard box for safe transport to processing (recycling) centers. Thank you for your work to provide collection services to the E-Cycle Washington program. For more information, see <http://www.ecy.wa.gov/programs/swfa/eproductrecycle/>.
